EXPLANATION OF THE FILES ON THIS DISK

The files TOROPC.EXE is required to allow the program TOROPC to run.

The files (part_number).tc each contain the needed information to allow the program TOROPC to load the machine application program into the Toro ACE system ECU or TurfDefender. It also provides information to aid in diagnosing machine problems, should they occur. When entering the program TOROPC, the user must select the machine on which he will be working, by typing in the model and serial number.

The file config.sys contains an example of information which is required by the PC to configure itself when it boots. This file should be edited per the instructions in the TOROPC users manual.

The file autoexec.bat also contains some information which helps the PC understand how to configure itself when it boots. This file should be edited per the instructions in the TOROPC users manual.

The file readme contains specific information about the other files on the disk. It may be read by typing "type Readme | more" and pressing Enter or Return.
